To pedal through Sierra de Gata

I noroeste de la provincia de Cáceres, haciendo frontera con tierras portuguesas (por el oeste) y salmantinas (por el norte), se extiende uno de los territorios más bellos y auténticos de Extremadura, la Sierra de Gata. Perteneciente al Sistema Central, esta comarca montañosa está comprendida por 20 municipios y 2 pedanías, diseminados por un territorio con algo más de cien mil hectáreas de extensión y con núcleos de población que no sobrepasan los mil habitantes por municipio.

Sierra de Gata está bendecida por una diversidad paisajística y natural dificilmente comparable a otros entornos geográficos extremeños. Una variedad tan amplia como exuberante de flora y fauna, unos recursos hídricos abundantes y dispersos por toda la comarca, unas condiciones atmosféricas suaves favorecidas por la abundancia de precipitaciones que, a su vez, redunda en el mantenimiento de una masa vegetal rica y extensa, una arquitectura popular típica de serranía... Son factores que a lo largo de los siglos han ido cincelando una forma de vivir sostenible y respetuosa con el entorno, basada en el aprovechamiento inteligente de los recursos y productos de la zona –principalmente vid, castaña y olivo–, y en la preservación de una cultura serrana con identidad propia. Tan auténtica que algunas de sus poblaciones conservan aún una forma lingüística hablada denominada "A Fala" que —procedente quizá de su carácter fronterizo— aporta una gran riqueza cultural a la comarca y a toda la región.

The landscapes and the people of Sierra de Gata are undoubtedly two of the main reasons to visit these lands, walk and pedal through its valleys and climb its highest peaks. Here hiking and cycling are a delight, both for casual hikers and demanding athletes. The hiking resources this region has to offer are increasing as the number of people interested in this modern sport is increasing too; a healthy, cheap and environment-friendly activity.

This guide is an invaluable resource to know how to get lost through the wide network of trails Sierra de Gata has to offer to the biker, a GPS not to lose your way, a support to know all the possibilities and attractions you will find in your hiking adventure properly. In this guide you will find a total of 10 routes or trails for bikes, going from east to west and north to south. All with detailed descriptions, illustrated contour plans with clear information about distances, gradients, difficulty and contours.

A guide, informative panels and, in general, the whole signposting process, description and homologation of the routes are part of the great effort made by ADISGATA (Asociación para el Desarrollo Integral de Sierra de Gata) to mark the thick network of trails in the region and add value and favour the practice of this sport that can be done by people of all ages. A new environment-friendly way to visit a place.

A Fala

his linear round trail starts in the beautiful San Martín de Trevejo, at the end of Puerto Street, by the school. You will share the same route with the PR-CC 184 until you reach Valverde del Fresno.

Go north towards Santa Clara Pass along the cobbled road until its end. At the beginning you will face a steep climb among olive trees and vineyards to test your strenght on the bike.

Get into the vast Ojestos chestnut grove to pass two majestic chestnuts known as Los Abuelos. Later on, the trail will cross the Vega

Brook through an old stone bridge, and soon will reach the highest point in the route at Santa Clara Pass (1,020 m). Get ready for short but steep elevation stretches.

Then turn left to the west to follow a path known as "Camino del Puerto", which goes through the slopes of Cancho Peñaflor, a breathtaking granite rock field that will catch your attention. From this slope you will have terrific views of the Ojestos chestnut grove in the foreground and Monte Jálama (1,492 m) in the background. Also in this area, you can find the Cancho del Cuervo and the so called Hernán Centeno Towers, perfect sites for sport climbing.

Get into an oakwood and follow down a switchback path that will take you to the picturesque village of Eljas and its street maze. Pass the church and go down to the Álamo Fountain and then cross the River Eljas through a ford by the ruins of an old mill.

Amidst crop fields you will get to the Castaño Brook, cross it using some stones. The path will turn into a dirt track but you will soon get to Valverde del Fresno. To finish this strenuous route, with very technical sections, get back to San Martín de Trevejo using the paved country road that connects both villages.

Militar Orders Trail

This route starts in San Martín de Trevejo (620 m), Site of Artistic and Historical Interest. First we will have to go up towards the road. To do so, after crossing the bridge next to the Tres Caños Fountain, in los Caños Street we will go up to the left taking the cobbled Chafaril Avenue, the route will get to a path - also followed by the GR 10 - among orchards and olive groves that crosses the road coming down from Santa Clara Pass.

Taking the paths on the left twice - less signposted - you will find steep climbing stretches. Through a beautiful chestnut grove we will keep on climbing until we reach the road that goes from Villamiel to San Martín de Trevejo. In this section we can marvel at some hundreds-year-old chestnuts. The route starts going down along the path that begins on our right, and after passing a stone cross, gets to Villamiel.

Cross Villamiel through Soledad Street and go down to the road. Cross the road and turn left, keep on for a few metres and then turn right to follow a trail between two houses.

The steep descent is made through an old cobbled path that goes along between the stone walls that separate vineyards, olive trees and chestnut trees. A delight for bikers. Once the Lagares Brook is crossed, a steep ascent beginst to end up crossing the road again. The route goes along the left edge of a hill and finishes at an open area where Trevejo is.

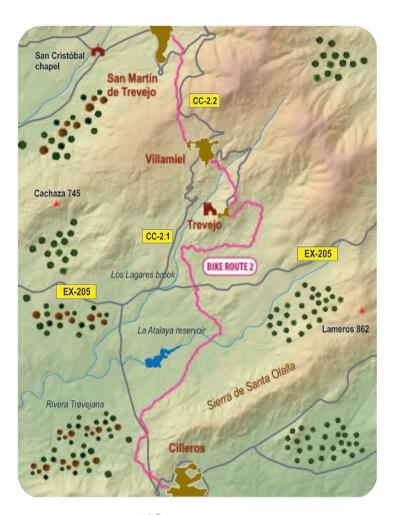

The route, following the GR, crosses the medieval village of Trevejo, first in the direction of the castle and then, turning to the left. After zigzagging through its streets, leave the village along a cobbled path passing the Chapel of Cristo towards Cilleros.

You will have olive trees, chestnuts, oaks and some fig trees along the route, as well as Trevejo's castle on your right. The path turns into a dirt track and crosses the Montalvo Brook twice. After entering an area full of enormous granite rocks and oaks, you will get to the EX-205 road if you pay attention to the crossroads signs.

Cross the road and take a dirt track. This stretch is continuously going up and down through dehesas and cattle fields and, after 4,5 km you will get to a forgotten paved road. Turn left and when you get to the road, cross it and follow a gravel road that will later turn into a path after turning left again.

After a descent amidst lush vegetation and after crossing the Tejar Brook – a frequently flooded area – you will get to a new track. The route continues with strenuous climbing to the left and then reaches again the road you had previously crossed. Then it passes by a communication antenna and a new pronounced descent begins towards Cilleros.

San Martín de Trevejo – Hoyos

This route starts in San Martín de Trevejo (620 m), Site of Artistic and Historical Interest. First you will have to go up towards the road. To do so, after crossing the bridge next to the Tres Caños Fountain, in los Caños Street you will go up to the left taking the cobbled Chafaril Avenue, the route will get to a path - also followed by the GR 10 - among orchards and olive groves that crosses the road coming down from Santa Clara Pass.

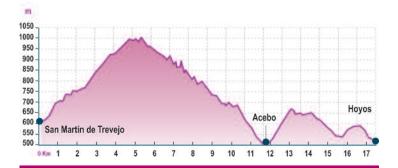

After one kilometre on the hard shoulder of the road, the GR 10 gets to a junction with a dirt track on the right. Among cows and a thick oakwood, the route will drop to reach the lone antenna placed in the Collado de la Parrera (1,000 m) also known as Collado de las Dehesas. Follow the path on your right, a steep 6 kilometres descent to reach a fork: if you go left you will cointinue descending to Acebo; if you go right, you will follow a detour trail around a hill to get to Hoyos.

Get into Hoyos by a big house with a palm tree, located on the right side of the EX-205 road. Go left along this road for 290 metres and then go down Extremadura Avenue.

Royal Cattle Tracks Trail

Hoyos - Perales del Puerto - Moraleja

T his route follows the royal cattle track and the PR-CC 183 across middle mountain landscapes with their mixture of woods and typical olive groves, to the lower areas with large irrigated lands that use the waters running down the mountains.

The starting point is in Perales del Puerto, by the drinking trough you will find at the village exit heading for Cilleros. The first stretch goes among orchards with olive trees, then leads into the road to Cilleros and follows it for 500 metres, there, a wide track branches off to the left - the same way the cattle route follows - to be walked for 6 kilometres.

Not much later the track crosses the road from Moraleja to Cilleros to continue following the cattle track, paved in this section, towards Vegaviana. Vegaviana is a good example of colonization areas: uniform houses, canals, drying warehouses and of course, crop fields in its surroundings.

Go south along the Cañada Real de Gata, going from lower irrigated lands to upper dehesa meadows. The hike will take you to the Caserío de Malladas – a good example of rural farm along the royal cattle tracks -. After passing it you will get to the Ex-108 road, follow it for 4 kilometres.

Take a new track that starts by a house on the left side of the road. Follow it untill you get to Moraleja, final destination of this route between the mountains and the meadows.

La Fatela Trail

Acebo - Villasbuenas de Gata

This route has its starting point by Acebo's public school. Go ahead along the road for 260 metres and turn right on the first path you come across. Through stone alleys amidst thick oakwoods and pine woods you will descend to the Acebo Brook.

Cross the brook and head for the Parador de la Fatela, cross the EX-109 road and by the roundabout you will find a path that follows a fire lane. Go to the Robledillo Brook, don't cross it, ride on along its right bank to the south until you get to the Ex-205 road.

Cross the road and go ahead along a forest track that goes almost parallel to the Ex-205 road.

After 3 kilometres you will get to Villasbuenas de Gata.

La Fatela Trail 15

Ruta de las Fuentes

The "Ruta de las Fuentes" get its name from the many fountains that can be found in the Sierra de las Jañonas.

It starts at the beginning of Humilladero Street, by the chapel with the same name. Go down this street towards the village's graveyard, then turn right to follow a cobbled path towards Cruz de Piedra Pass, you have shared your route with the GR 10 so far.

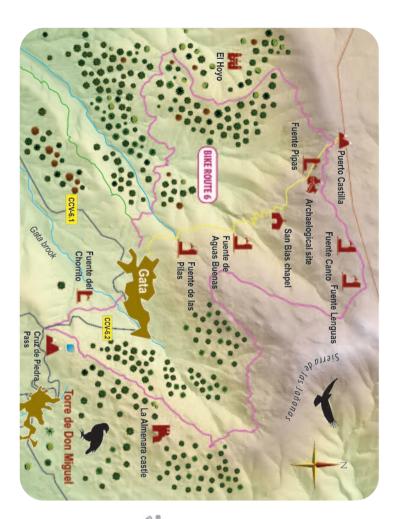

Cross the CC-6.2 road that connects Torre de Don Miguel and Gata. Go along the new forest track that climbs up to the Sierra de las Jañonas, you will see Almenara's Castle on your right. In this section you will cross a beautiful pine wood full of granite rocks, so common in this area.

Go along the forest track until you get to Castilla Pass, there you can join the PR-CC 185 trail and go down to Gata. In this section there are many fountains and natural springs that give this route its name. Among them you will find the so called "Fuente de las Pilas", and close to it, the recently discovered archeological site of "Puerto Castilla" where you will find eight round structures made of stone, whose function is still unknown.

Go to the spot of "El Hoyo" where you will find the remains of the Monastery of El Hoyo. You will cross large pine woods and 500 metres before the hike ends you will join the SL-CC 213 trail, "Camino de la Jarda".

Gata Brook Trail

Gata - Villasbuenas de Gata - Gata

his trail follows the GR 10 when it goes across the Sierra del Salido towars Villasbuenas de Gata, From there it goes upstream the Rivera de Gata River towards the Sierra de Gata campsite, and gets back to Gata along the Jarda

The trail starts at the iunction between San Sebastián Street and Pizarro Street. Go down Pizarro Street and at the end of it, follow a paved track that goes under the CC-6 road. Descend among orchards and olive groves to cross the Gata brook.

Continue to the right following a beautiful trail among old buildings to climb little by little the north-facing slope of the Sierra del Salido. You will reach Cumbre de Arriba Pass, from where you will have an extense view of the south-facing slope. In the background, on the left, you will see the Borbollón Reservoir and, on the right, the village of Villasbuenas de Gata.

A wide trail goes down among pine trees to reach Cumbre de Abajo Pass, right to a junction with another perpendicular trail. The route goes ahead following a narrowing path along the edge of another olive grove to gently ascend to reach a fire lane where a robust chestnut grows. Among olive trees you will get to another paved trail that crosses the EX-205 road and enters Villasbuenas de Gata.

From Villasbuenas go up the Rivera de Gata River and after 5 kilometres you will reach the road that goes up to Gata. Cross the road and by the campsite you will join the Jarda path, after 5 kilometres more you will reach Gata, entering Virgen del Puerto Street.

Gata Brook Trail

Las Jañonas

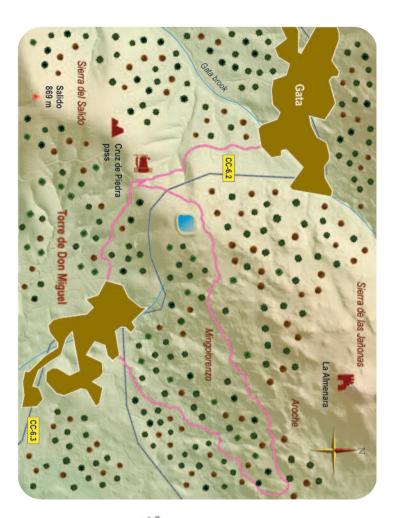

The route starts at the tourist information office in Gata. Leave the village along Humilladero Street, by the chapel with the same name. Go down this street towards the village's graveyard, where you will turn right to go along a paved path that goes to Cruz de Piedra Pass. Until now you have shared your route with the GR 10 and the PR-CC 189.

Cross the CC-6.2 road that connects Torre de Don Miguel and Gata. Continue along the new forest track that goes up to the Sierra de las Jañonas. Once you have crossed a water pond, the track will fork. Take the track on your right and after 272 metres, follow a narrow path between the stone walls that separate the nearby orchards.

This beautiful but technical path will be a delight for skilled bikers. Follow this path for 2,1 km until the path turns into a road. Follow it down to Torre de Don Miguel.

Cross this beautiful village through Virgen de Bienvenida Street and General Varela Street. Cross the CCV 6.2 road and keep on climbing up the GR 10 towards Cruz de Piedra Pass where you will turn back to Gata along the track you used at the beginning of the route.

Árrago Trail

Cadalso - Descargamaría

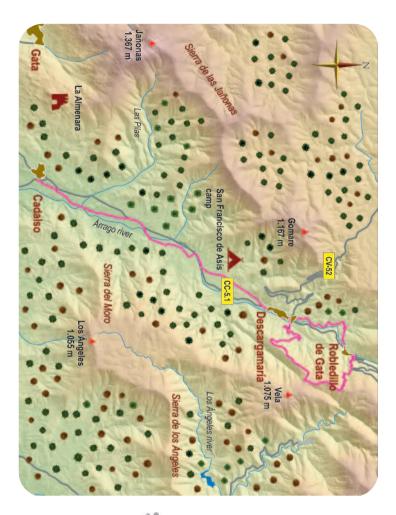

The trail starts by the access road to Torre de Don Miguel, where it joins the GR 10. From here you will go up the narrowest valley in Sierra de Gata, The Árrago Valley. The route follows the same path the GR 10 follows from Descargamaría. In this first section you will go across the sites of Hoya and Garcisánchez before getting to Cadalso.

Cross Cadalso through Caño Street until you get to España Square and from here follow Sequera Street towards the CCV-5.1 road that you will have to cross. Go up the Árrago Valley, crossing several tributary streams, such as the Puerto Brook or the Nobleas River. This last one is crossed through a bridge that you will find by the San Francisco de Asís youth camp. You will get to Descargamaría passing the Chapel of Humilladero and a bit later, the Piedra Hincá.

Cross Descargamaría along Real Street and by the swimming pool picnic area you will see a track, which after crossing the Árrago River, faces a steep ascent through a forest track. As you gain height you will have greater views of the valley. When you surmount this peak, you will join the GR 10 again. It comes up from Ovejuela.

Follow to the left by the watershed for a kilometre, when you reach 1,000 m you will see a new path on your left to start a wild zigzagging descent to the first houses of Robledillo de Gata. In this short section elevation will drop 550 metres.

Tralgas Trail

Villanueva de la Sierra - Torre de Don Miguel

This route goes along the Tralgas Valley and also along the Árrago Valley for a while, between Santibáñez el Alto and Torre de Don Miguel where it ends. Apart from these two villages, it also goes through Villanueva de la Sierra where it starts, Torrecilla de los Ángeles and Hernán Pérez.

In Villanueva de la Sierra (542 m) the trail starts at the junction between Calvo Sotelo Street and the Ex-205 road. From here go to the intersection between this road and the Ex-204 that goes to Salamanca, and follow it for 400 metres. Then you will have to follow a track you will find on your left.

In this first stretch between Villanueva and Torrecilla you will go through the lowest part of the Tralgas Valley, among large olive groves, so common in this part of the Sierra de Gata region.

The section between Torrecilla de los Ángeles and Hernán Pérez follows forest tracks through the south-facing slopes of the Sierra de los Ángeles, an ideal viewpoint over the Tralgas Valley.

In the stretch between Hernán Pérez and Santibáñez el Alto, you will go down to the lowest part of the valley, crossing the Tralgas River and the Árrago River as well just before they converge. From here elevation will gain 300 metres to reach Santibáñez el Alto, where you will be able to take a rest and marvel at its Arabian castle and its views. From here, in the Árrago Valley, you will go down a beautiful path towards Torre de Don Miguel, crossing a mix forest with conifers and leafy trees as well as olive groves.

Nature in Sierra de Gata

i tuviéramos que elegir uno de los muchos rincones de Extremadura, de esos rincones llenos de singularidades, de influencias, de mezclas de culturas, de tradición, de patrimonio... sin duda ése lugar sería la Sierra de Gata. Situada en el extremo más noroccidental de la provincia de Cáceres, la Sierra de Gata es el pórtico natural que conecta dos provincias, dos comunidades autónomas, dos países. Un punto de encuentro entre mesetas.

If we had to choose only one of the many unique places in Extremadura, those places full of charm, history, mix of cultures, tradition, heritage... undoubtedly, that place would be Sierra de Gata. Located in the northwest corner of the province of Cáceres, Sierra de Gata is a natural path connecting two provinces, two autonomous regions, two countries.

Sierra de Gata in not only an area of transit. It is not just a step of valleys and folds, of peaks and slopes. It is not only a charming region rich in birds, fauna, flora, landscapes and culture. No. Sierra de Gata is much more than that. It is hideouts rich in history. It is a reunion with rural traditions. It is an enclave of light and air and crystalline waters running down the streets of its villages that shower the hiker with one-of-a kind sensations.

The region of Sierra de Gata caress the sky with its high peaks - Jálama, Bollas, Gomara, Espinazo, Mezas... - those firm pillars that strengthen and nourish this welcoming land. And between its pillars, at their foots, 22 villages full of a precious cultural and popular heritage. Old times that have left traces of culture and tradition, of customs and popular craftwork. But, undoubtedly, the times of the Reconquest marked the current layout of people and their works in this region.

The presence of different peoples in Sierra de Gata, throughout history, through their actions, have left enough traces to inspire a visit and know the Atlantic wet climate, the midday sun, the Ábrego winds, the whistling draughts at dusk and at dawn, the limpid, starry nights or the most thunderous and spectacular storms ever seen.

One of the most relevant characteristics of the environment in this region, with its origin in the times of the Reconquest and the following repopulations, is "A Fala", that linguistic treasure from San Martín de Trevejo, Eljas and Valverde del Fresno that provides the region with a great cultural wealth. A transitional dialect between Portuguese, Asturleonés and Galician.

FLORA AND FAUNA. More than 1175 different species can be found in the flora in Sierra de Gata: natural, cultivated and wild plants can be seen if you pay attention while walking through the region's paths and trails.

The sub-humid Mediterranean climate, as well as some Atlantic climate enclaves, fill this land with endless forests of Pyrenean oaks as well as some chestnuts or sessile oaks that mix with typical Mediterranean forests: cork oaks, holm oaks, pines and strawberry trees... and on most of its hills, when fall and winter are wet and rains continue until spring, moss is the king in shady areas.

If you talk about Sierra de Gata, you have to mention birch trees, holly bush, junipers, holm oaks and oaks that contrast with slopes full of pines and cork oaks. If you talk about Sierra de Gata you talk about olive trees and oil, its main economic resource. The growth of olive trees, the prunings and the milling seasons are part of the history of this region. Olive trees with that dull but perennial green colour that still survives in autumn, when the deciduous forests turn yellowish, reddish or ochre. This is "the land of the golden oil" as was described by Daniel Berjano, an expert in the bonds of this region with oil, from the growth of olive trees to the associated industry and the commercialisation of its products. Oils for different types of oil lamps but also for cooking, for toasts, lagarera soups or lemon and orange salads. Exquisite food to enjoy with a great wine. "Terra mui famosa e de muitos vinhos" ("famous land of many wines") as defined by Nuno Alvares in his Chronicle.

Olive trees, vines and of course! chestnut trees, king of the slopes that provides the region with a fruit that is still part of many ancient customs. Chestnut trees with stories rooted in the life of Sierra de Gata.

A great variety of landscapes and flora make this land into an unrivalled setting of great ecological value. There are more than 200 species of vertebrates identified, most of which can be found in the autochthonous Mediterranean forest areas that are still intact. A refuge for the Iberian wolf and the lynx – about to be extinguished -. The otter, the ichneumon and the wildcat find a shelter in these areas as well

From the highest viewpoints in Sierra de Gata you can observe the rare nests of golden eagles and black vultures. In the silence of nature you can feel the flapping of wings of one of the most beautiful and elusive birds, the black stork, always looking for quiet places to nest.

Rabbits, hares, wild boars, roe deers, red-legged partridges, common wood pigeons, turtle doves; wild ducks, eagles, falcons, black kites, owls; hedgehogs, foxes, least weasels, common genets, common geckos, Iberian worm lizards, horseshoe whip snakes, Iberian spadefoot toads, Iberian frogs, fire salamanders, etc.; common barbels, tenches, trouts, etc are an important part of the landscapes of this natural space of high ecological value.

The nearby Borbollón Reservoir, plentiful of water, is a perfect spot to make nests and spend the winter for the cattle egret, the grey heron and the little egret, among other species. A dam surrounded by lush vegetation and flooded meadows that are home to cormorants and cranes and with plenty of trout and slippery European eels.

Sierra de Gata, with all its hidden spots, has so much history behind that there is no fountain, castle, natural spot or big house without a legend or a secret treasure. Its remains and its history will make you return to walk its roads again and again, enjoy the sound of its crystalline running waters, its scents, its flavours and its beautiful landscapes.
